

Scaling new heights

OVER the past two weeks Year 3 have been on climbing expeditions at Hampton Youth Project. They were taught how to climb up and down and move across a climbing wall using different foot and hand holds. As well as challenging them physically, the children set their own targets of how high they wanted to climb. Pictured below is Daisy C, Lemurs.

THERE are lots of challenges in Year 6—but the Stixx Project, run for the school each year by staff from Heathrow Airport's Engineering department is one of the more unusual team-building exercises they undertake. They take over the hall for a morning and create amazing, stable structures made from old rolled up newspapers, glue and a few cable ties.
