SCIENTIST REVEALS DETAILS OF FIRST EVER TRIP IN A TIME MACHINE!

WHO IS THIS SCIENTIST?

Professor Mad Bomb a famous scientist invented a special kind of time machine called the TELEPHONE 2000 so he could go back to the time of the Egyptians because that is when homework was invented. Mad Bomb has a wife and two daughters. His girls go to school and they get homework every week, it makes them all miserable.

Which is why he had to do something about it. It took a lot of work to build the TELEPHONE 2000, but after weeks of teaching his family how they could help, they got it done in less than a year.

AFTER THE BUILD!

When the time machine was finished Mad Bombs wife and girls insisted on going with him, but he said “no, it could be dangerous.” So, Mad Bomb set off in the time machine all alone to get rid of homework once and for all. He whizzed through space and time to find himself in Ancient Egypt. He stepped out of the time machine and smiled because his invention had worked! In front of him was a building made of sandstone which looked like a school. He tiptoed over to the building entrance and there was no door. He plotted through and into the building there was one very long hallway that led to all the rooms in the school. He crept down the hall looking in every room he passed. There were classrooms, toilets, a kitchen and more. When the professor reached the end of the hall he noticed a large door, the only door in the whole school. The door looked like it was made of bamboo. As quiet as a mouse, he opened the door and saw a large hall full of teachers and children.

This is the Egyptian school that Professor Mad Bomb visited.

IS HOMEWORK GOING?

Mad Bomb listened to the man at the front of the hall as he strangely said “has anyone got any random ideas or inventions, children.” After he had said that Mad Bomb looked around the room to see one child had put his hand up and said “I have an idea and it is called...” before he could finish his sentence Mad Bomb grabbed a gun from his pocket but not a normal gun, a gun that if you shot someone with it, it would change what your saying. Mad Bomb didn’t know if this is the child who started HOMEWORK so he let the kid finish his sentence before shooting him. It is called... HOMEWORK!” Mad Bomb shot the child when the man at the front of the hall said “what is HOMEWORK” “I never said HOMEWORK I said HOMEFUN you should send us home with a wordsearch every Thursday!” said the boy. There was a short silence then the whole hall burst into cheers. Mad Bomb ran down the hallway with a huge grin on his face.

THE END!

Mad Bomb ran down the hallway and lept into the TELEPHONE 2000 to travel back home to his wife and girls, so he can tell them the good news and live a happy life without having to suffer the constant pain of HOMEWORK! He whizzed back through space to find himself back at his home. “Home sweet home!” His wife and girls ran out to see there dad was home. “Daddy,” they screamed. They gave there dad a giant hug and lived a happy life! [Without HOMEWORK!]

THE END!
