

Carn Doedog has been identified as one quarry of bluestones used in Stonehenge.

This is Carn Meini, another possible quarry site. Photo by ceridwen [CC-BY-SA-2.0 (<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-sa/2.0>)], via Wikimedia Commons

The bluestones may have made a stone circle in the Preseli Hills before being moved to Stonehenge.

This is Beddarthur stone circle. Photo by Andrew Howey [CC-BY-SA-2.0 (<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-sa/2.0>)], via Wikimedia Commons.

Castell Mawr is a later hillfort that may have been a reused Neolithic structure.

This is an aerial photograph of Castell Mawr (the almost circular feature in the left of the photo) by Dave Price [CC-BY-SA-2.0 (<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-sa/2.0>)], via Wikimedia Commons.

